7 Commandments to Limit Liabilities

THE COMMANDMENT	HOW I'LL DO THIS
I will stick to my budget.
I will stay focused on my goals and my plans to achieve them.
I will differentiate my needs from wants – and control the money I spend on wants, because I know those never end.
I will never spend money I don't have. If I don't have $100 in cash or my savings account, I won't spend $100 on a credit card.
I will never keep a balance on a credit card (unless the interest is 0%). I will pay my credit card bill, in full, before the due date and never miss a payment.
I will maintain low expenses even if there is an unexpected increase in the money I earn (holiday or birthday money, work bonus, or pay raise).
I will not buy things to "feel" better, improve my mood, or because I'm bored. I remain happy, upbeat, and grateful. No "retail therapy" for me.
